
Chapter 24: Assessment of the Respiratory System
Ignatavicius: Medical-Surgical Nursing questions with correct answers

1. A nurse obtains the health history of a client who is recently diagnosed with lung cancer and identifies that the client has a 60-pack-year smoking history. Which action is most important for the nurse to take when interviewing this client?

- a. Tell the client that he or she needs to quit smoking to stop further cancer development.
- b. Encourage the client to be completely honest about both tobacco and marijuana use.
- c. Maintain a nonjudgmental attitude to avoid causing the client to feel guilty.
- d. Avoid giving the client false hope regarding cancer treatment and prognosis

Answer ANS: C

Smoking assessments and cessation information can be an uncomfortable and sensitive topic among both clients and health care providers. The nurse would maintain a nonjudgmental attitude in order to foster trust with the client. Telling the client he or she needs to quit smoking is paternalistic and threatening. Assessing exposure to smoke includes more than tobacco and marijuana. The nurse would avoid giving the client false hope but when taking a history, it is most important to get accurate information.

2. A nurse assesses a client after an open lung biopsy. Which assessment finding is matched with the correct intervention?

- a. Client reports being dizzy—nurse calls the Rapid Response Team.
- b. Client's heart rate is 55 beats/min—nurse withholds pain medication.
- c. Client has reduced breath sounds—nurse calls primary health care provider immediately.
- d. Client's respiratory rate is 18 breaths/min—nurse decreases oxygen flow rate.

Answer ANS: C
