A study by Tantleff-Dunn and Thompson (1998) examined body image and its impact on recall. The objective of the experiment was to demonstrate biased recall and judgment among individuals with high levels of dispositional body image anxiety towards appearance-related information. It was hypothesized that those with high levels of dispositional body image anxiety would recall more appearance-related information than those who have low body image anxiety.

Numerous studies were cited in relation to and support of the study. Being teased about your appearance as a child has been strongly linked to future body image disturbance (Cash, 1995; Cattarin & Thompson, 1994; Heinberg, 1996). Receiving nonverbal feedback has been correlated with body image dissatisfaction, this is also referred to as reflected appraisal theory (Cooley, 1922; Felson, 1985; Mead, 1934). Biased recall of information is emotionally relevant to the individual (Williamson, 1996). NOTE: THE REVIEW OF PAST LITERATURE SHOULD INCLUDE THE LINK BETWEEN THE STUDIES CITED AND THE HYPOTHESIS OF THE STUDY.

Method

A group of 184 undergraduate students from psychology classes were asked to participate in this experiment in exchange for extra credit points. The participants were randomly selected into each of the study's conditions. The participants were given a test (Physical Appearance State-Trait Anxiety Scale) prior to the video. This was a self-report inventory that asked the participants to rate how anxious (high/low) they felt about weight related issues and non-weight related issues. High and low body image was measured as a participant independent variable. NOTE: MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE PARTICIPANTS INCLUDING ANY
