CARD #1

From 1337 to 1453, a series of battles were fought between France and England during the late Middle Ages. There were two major issues that they fought over during the conflict that became famous: who should be the king of France. This war was the longest war in recorded history, spanning through the reigns of five French and five English kings. The war didn't last 100 years, but instead 16 years.

HINK TANK

CARD #3

The second problem during the Hundred Years' War was that the English king claimed the French crown was theirs. Charles IV of France died in 1328, without an immediate male heir to the throne. King Edward III of England believed he should rule France. Not only was he the king of England, but also a duke in southwestern France. The French chose to install their own king, Philip VI, instead of giving rule to the English.
