Gifford,1987 Deacon Training Kate Ward-Turner,2008-05 Indifference toward deacon development places the church in a precarious state By and large congregations stand to be weakened by deacons who have not discovered the exciting possibilities of the office When pastor and congregation disregard the need to have trained deacons the office is allowed to recede into one of mere honor rather than service established in Christ On the other hand trained deacons or those in training discover exciting opportunities with which the office of deacons is filled They come to perceive the office as one of service rather than honor The church is strengthened exceedingly by their effective and efficient leadership under the sight of the pastor Unquestionable God is looking for a special breed of deacons a New Testament breed who are Spirit filled and qualified To say that deacons are qualified is to say also that they are trained for the work of deacons A Quick Start Guide

Jeremy Daigler,2012-10-12 Incompatible with God's Design is the first comprehensive history of the Roman Catholic women's ordination movement in the United States Mary Jeremy Daigler explores how the focus on ordination and not merely increased participation in the life and ministries of the church has come to describe a broad movement Moving well beyond the role of such organizations as the Women's Ordination Conference this study also addresses the role of international and local groups In an effort to debunk a number of misperceptions about the movement from its date of origin to its demographic profile Daigler explores a vast array of topics Starting with the movement's historical background from the early American period through the early twentieth century to Vatican II and afterward she considers the role of women especially Catholicism's more religious adherents in the movement's evolution the organization of the ordination movement in the United States the role and response of clergy and Vatican teachings the reality of international influences on the U S movement and the full range of challenges past and present to the ordination movement Incompatible with God's Design is compelling reading for any student of theology and women's studies as well as those interested in staying abreast with the
