Rules:

1. Read the questions, the sources, and plan your answers first
2. Answer the question directly in your first sentence (use the keywords from the question)
3. Do not summarise the sources, go into detail and explore meaning
4. Focus mainly on the content of the sources, and discuss providence
5. Comparison questions:
 - state the exact similarity/difference is (do not discuss the sources separately)
 - Any question that involves 2 or more sources is a comparison question
 - Check what the question is asking you to compare, it is only attitude, usefulness, reliability or a view about something?
6. Use lots of evidence to back up your arguments:
 - Use quotations
 - Use specific details from the Pictures/cartoons
7. Only the 'Why was Source X published in the year 19xx?' is the one sided argument, all the other questions require two or more sides to the argument.
8. Do not just look at surface meaning as you should discuss tone, hidden messages, irony (purpose) of the source
9. How useful is the source = how reliable is the source:
 - Focus what detail the source has that is important/relevant to the topic/your answer?
 - Consider reasons we can trust the source vs reasons we can't trust the source:
Use the provenance to judge the reliability of the source (provenance= date, author's position, purpose, reasons for bias....)
10. The final comparison question is the only question that does not change, so it's the one you can prepare for best of all- keep it in mind as you go through the sources/questions.

Tips:

- Highlight key words/relevant words that you can discuss
- Use a colour system to signal similarities and differences/ key facts

It involved no preconceived plan of action, it rested upon a number of political and moral assumptions about the virtue of compromise and peace. It involved using the instruments of British power- trading and financial strength and a wealth of diplomatic experience- to their fullest advantage"
