

The Characteristics of Descriptive Writing

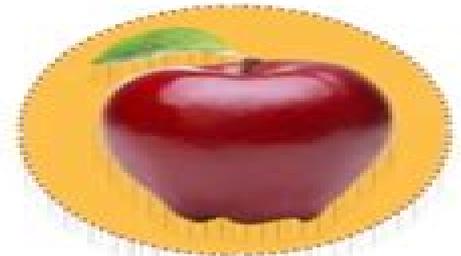

All the writing types have special characteristics, including descriptive writing. Remember, when you first learned how to write descriptively, it was often done using additional adjectives to describe nouns and adverbs to describe actions.

However, it is much more than adding words to your writing. For example, you can describe an apple as red and shiny, two accurate adjectives, or identify the sound it makes when you bite into it, but an apple could be described much more effectively:

In the fruit bowl sat a single, round-shaped, reddish-pink apple, with a small brown stem protruding from its top. I grasped the smooth-skinned apple in my hand and bit into it. The crunch was music to my ears as I savored the aroma and juicy, sweet taste of nature's perfect fruit.

Every description of an apple will not be the same, but your description should be much more than red and shiny, or green and round. They are common adjectives and tell very little.

Nearly all the things you see, touch, feel, hear, and taste can be described using all five senses. As much as possible, you want the person reading your words to paint a picture in their mind that accurately matches your description.
