Cog Late Effects Guidelines:

CURED I - LENT Late Effects of Cancer Treatment on Normal Tissues Philip Rubin, L.S. Constine, Lawrence B. Marks, Paul Okunieff, 2007-12-27 The rapid advances in radiation oncology radiation biology and radiation therapy physics have led to an accumulation of information on the interactions of radiation with other therapeutic modalities such as the wide array of chemotherapeutic agents being employed in combination with radiation therapy as well as the multiple biologic response modifiers that are being used in combination with radiation therapy It is now recognized that they have a significant impact on normal tissue toxicities The radiation doses customarily deemed safe on the basis of past experience have now when combined with other modalities led to severe late effects in different vital organs The previously defined radiation tolerance dosages remain as valuable guides but their applicability has changed significantly The emphasis is now placed on the volume of the organ irradiated as well as the dose being used New constructs relating global whole organ and focal partial volume injury as a function of the dose volume histogram emerge as a significant predictor of late effects on normal tissues There are now mathematical models such as the model on standard dose time dose factors and accumulated radiation effects that have been supplanted by linear quadratic equations using the alpha beta ratio and its clinical applicability to normal tissue complications This volume presents contemporary data relating to late effects on normal tissues

ALERT - Adverse Late Effects of Cancer Treatment Philip Rubin, Louis S. Constine, Lawrence B. Marks, 2013-10-04 The literature on the late effects of cancer treatment is widely scattered in different journals since all major organ systems are affected and management is based on a variety of medical and surgical treatments The aim of ALERT Adverse Late Effects of Cancer Treatment is to offer a coherent multidisciplinary approach to the care of cancer survivors The Volume focuses on the general concepts and principles relevant to late effects and on the dynamic interplay of molecular cytologic and histopathologic events that lead to altered physiologic and metabolic functions and their clinical manifestations Chapters are also included on legal issues economic aspects nursing psychological issues and quality of life It is anticipated that this textbook will become the gold standard in providing information on the late effects of cancer treatment and that in its digitized form it will be referenced in cancer survivorship guidelines

Blood and Marrow Transplantation Long Term Management Bipin N. Savani, Andre Tichelli, 2021-03-02 Blood and Marrow Transplantation Long Term Management Hematopoietic cell transplantation HCT provides curative therapy for a variety of diseases Over the past several decades significant advances have been made in the field of HCT to the point where HCT has become an integral part of treatment modality for a variety of hematologic malignancies and some nonmalignant diseases HCT remains an important treatment option for a wide variety of hematologic and nonhematologic disorders despite recent advances in the field of immunologic therapies Factors driving this growth include expanded disease indications greater donor options expanding unrelated donor registries and haploidentical HCT and accommodation of older and less fit recipients The development of less toxic pretransplant conditioning regimens more effective prophylaxis of graft versus host disease GVHD improved infection control and other advances in transplant technology have resulted in a rapidly growing number of transplant recipients surviving long term free of the disease for which they were transplanted The changes over decades in the transplant recipient population and in the practice of HCT will have almost inevitably altered the composition of the long term survivor population over time Apart from an increasingly older transplant recipient cohort the pattern of transplant indications has shifted from the 1990s when chronic myeloid leukemia made up a significant proportion of allo HCT indications Changes in cell source donor types conditioning regimens GVHD prophylaxis and supportive care have all occurred with ongoing reductions in both relapse and non relapse mortality NRM have been demonstrated These patients have increased risks for a variety of late complications which can cause morbidity and mortality Most long term survivors return to the care of their local hematologists oncologists or primary care physicians who may not be familiar with specialized monitoring and management of long complications after HCT for this patient population As HCT survivorship increases the focus of care has shifted to the identification and treatment of long term complications that may affect quality of life and long term morbidity and mortality Preventive care as well as early detection and treatments are important aspects to reducing morbidity and mortality in long term survivors after allo HCT This second edition Blood and Marrow Transplantation Long Term Management Survivorship after Transplant provides up to date information about diagnosis screening treatment and long term surveillance of long term survivors after HCT
