MacDougall-Shackleton,2023-12-20

Evolution and Psychology is a critical exploration of how evolutionary approaches can be used to understand the human mind and behaviour Written for undergraduate students in the social sciences this text provides an accessible introduction to foundational concepts in evolutionary biology It then explores evolutionary perspectives on key psychological topics such as cognition development group dynamics mate choice language and communication psychopathology and culture An interdisciplinary approach is woven throughout integrating evolutionary psychology with insights from behavioural ecology anthropology genetics and neuroscience You will learn to think critically about evolutionary explanations with Warning Flag features throughout the text that address frequently misunderstood topics common fallacies and historical misuses and abuses of applying evolutionary theory to human behaviour This is an essential read for students of Evolutionary Psychology and anyone looking for a contemporary overview of this complex and captivating field Scott A MacDougall Shackleton is Professor of Psychology at Western University Schizophrenia Bulletin ,2004 Sources of Variation in First Language Acquisition Maya Hickmann,Edy Veneziano,Harriet Jisa,2018-02-22

Developmental research has long focused on regularities in language acquisition minimizing factors that might be responsible for variation Although researchers are now increasingly concerned with one or another of these factors this volume brings together research on three different sources of variation language specific properties the nature of the input to children across contexts and several aspects of the learners themselves Chapters explore these sources of variation within an interdisciplinary and comparative approach allying theories and methodologies stemming from linguistics psycholinguistics developmental psychology and neuroscience The comparative perspective involves different languages contexts of use types of learners first second language acquisition monolingual bilingual learners autism language impairment as well as vocal and visuo gestural communicative modalities co verbal gestures sign language acquisition The volume points to the need to enhance interdisciplinary research using complementary methodologies to further examine sources of variation and to integrate variation into a more general developmental theory The American Psychiatric Press Textbook of Neuropsychiatry Stuart C. Yudofsky,Robert E. Hales,1997

Written and edited by an internationally renowned group of experts including 39 new authors the Third Edition has been extensively revised to provide psychiatrists neurologists neuropsychologists internists and residents with the latest developments in research clinical practice and diagnostic technology With the addition of eight new chapters increased emphasis has been placed on molecular and intracellular aspects of neuropsychiatry and the role of functional imaging in neuropsychiatric disorders In addition this text is lavishly illustrated with more than 180 tables and over 200 figures including many full color images that will maintain this textbook's standing as the most important source for neuropsychiatry

Sense of Agency: Examining Awareness of the Acting Self Nicole David, James W Moore, Sukhvinder

Obhi, 2015-07-24 The sense of agency is defined as the sense of oneself as the agent of one's own actions. This also allows oneself to feel distinct from others and contributes to the subjective phenomenon of self-consciousness. Gallagher 2000 Distinguishing oneself from others is arguably one of the most important functions of the human brain. Even minor impairments in this ability profoundly affect the individual's functioning in society as demonstrated by psychiatric and neurological syndromes involving agency disturbances. Della Sala et al 1991, Franck et al 2001, Frith 2005, Sirigu et al 1999. But the sense of agency also plays a role for cultural and religious phenomena such as voodoo superstition and gambling in which individuals experience subjective control over objectively uncontrollable entities. Wegner 2003. Furthermore, it plays into ethical and law questions concerning responsibility and guilt. For these reasons, a better understanding of the sense of agency has been important for neuroscientists, clinicians, philosophers of mind, and the general society alike. Significant progress has been made in this regard. For example, philosophical scrutiny has helped establish the conceptual boundaries of the sense of agency. Bayne 2011, Gallagher 2000, 2012, Pacherie 2008, Synofzik et al 2008, and scientific investigations have shed light on the neurocognitive basis of sense of agency, including the brain regions supporting sense of agency. Chambon et al 2013, David et al 2007, Farrer et al 2003, 2008, Spengler et al 2009, Tsakiris et al 2010, Yomogida et al 2010. Despite this progress, there remain a number of outstanding questions such as: Are there cross-cultural differences in the sense of agency? How does the sense of agency develop in infants or change across the lifespan? How does social context influence sense of agency? What neural networks support sense of agency, i.e., connectivity and communication between brain regions? What are the temporal dynamics with respect to neural processes underlying the sense of agency, i.e., the what and when of agency processing? How can different cue models of the sense of agency be further specified and empirically supported, especially with regards to cue integration weighting? What are the applications of sense of agency research clinically, engineering, etc.? The concept of the sense of agency offers intriguing avenues for knowledge transfer across disciplines and interdisciplinary empirical approaches, especially in addressing the aforementioned outstanding questions. The aim of the present research topic is to promote and facilitate such interdisciplinarity for a better understanding of why and how we typically experience our own actions so naturally and undoubtedly as ours, and what goes awry when we do not. We thus welcome contributions from, for example, i) neuroscience and psychology including development psychology, neuroscience; ii) psychiatry and neurology; iii) philosophy; iv) robotics; and v) computational modeling. In addition to empirical or scientific studies of the sense of agency, we also encourage theoretical contributions including reviews, models, and opinions.
