Recovered Territory Peter Polak-Springer, 2015-10-01 Upper Silesia one of Central Europe's most important industrial borderlands was at the center of heated conflict between Germany and Poland and experienced annexations and border re-drawings in 1922, 1939 and 1945. This transnational history examines these episodes of territorial re-nationalization and their cumulative impacts on the region and nations involved as well as their use by the Nazi and postwar communist regimes to legitimate violent ethnic cleansing. In their interaction with and mutual influence on one another, political and cultural actors from both nations developed a transnational culture of territorial rivalry. Architecture, spaces of memory, films, museums, folklore, language, policy, mass rallies, and archeological digs were some of the means they used to give the borderland a German-Polish face. Representative of the wider politics of twentieth-century Europe, the situation in Upper Silesia played a critical role in the making of history's most violent and uprooting eras, 1939-1950.

Agriculture and the State in Soviet and Post-Soviet Russia Stephen Wegren, 2010-11-23 Winner 1999 Edward A. Hewett Book Prize from AAASS. A comprehensive, original, and innovative analysis of the social, economic, and political factors affecting contemporary Russian agrarian reform, the book is organized around the central question of the role of the state and its effect on the course of Russian agrarian reform. In the wake of the collapse of the USSR, contemporary conventional wisdom holds that the Russian state is weak. Stephen Wegren feels that the traditional approach to the weak-strong state suffers from measurement and circular logic problems, believing that the Russian state, though weaker than in its Soviet past, is still relatively stronger than other actors. The state's strength allows it to intervene in the rural sector in ways that other power contenders cannot. Specifically, as a measure of state intervention, Wegren analyzes how the state has influenced urban-rural relations, rural-rural relations, and the nonstate-private agricultural sector. Several dilemmas arose that have complicated successful agrarian reform as a result of the nature of state interventions: how reform policies were defined and the incentives that arose from state-sponsored policies. During contemporary Russian agrarian reform, urban-rural differences have widened, marked by a deterioration in rural standards of living and increased alienation of rural political groups from urban alliances. At the same time, within the rural sector, reform failed to reverse rural egalitarianism. In addition, the nature of state interventions has undermined attempts to create a vibrant, productive private rural sector based on private farming. Wegren's research is based upon extensive field work, interviews, archival documents, and published and unpublished source material conducted over a six-year period, and he demonstrates the link between agrarian reform and the success of overall reform in Russia. This learned and often controversial volume will interest political scientists, policy makers, and scholars and students of contemporary Russia.
