Unfair Housing Mara S. Sidney, 2003 It is difficult to ignore the fact that even as the United States becomes much more racially and ethnically diverse our neighborhoods remain largely segregated The 1968 Fair Housing Act and 1977 Community Reinvestment Act promised to end discrimination yet for millions of Americans housing options remain far removed from the American Dream Why do most neighborhoods in American cities continue to be racially divided The problem suggests Mara Sidney lies with the policies themselves She contends that to understand why discrimination persists we need to understand the political challenges faced by advocacy groups who implement them In Unfair Housing she offers a new explanation for the persistent color lines in our cities by showing how weak national policy has silenced and splintered grassroots activists Sidney explains how political compromise among national lawmakers with divergent interests resulted in housing legislation that influenced how community activists defined discrimination what actions they took and which political relationships they cultivated As a result local governments became less likely to include housing discrimination on their agendas existing laws went unenforced and racial segregation continued A former undercover investigator for a fair housing advocacy group Sidney takes readers into the neighborhoods of Minneapolis and Denver to show how federal housing policy actually works She examines how these laws played out in these cities and reveals how they eroded activists capability to force more sweeping reform in housing policy Sidney also shows how activist groups can cultivate community resources to overcome these difficulties looking across levels of government to analyze how national policies interact with local politics In the first book to apply policy design theories of Anne Schneider and Helen Ingram to an empirical case Sidney illuminates overlooked impacts of fair housing and community reinvestment policies and extends their theories to the study of local politics and nonprofit organizations Sidney argues forcefully that understanding the link between national policy and local groups sheds light on our failure to reduce discrimination and segregation As battles over fair housing continue her book helps us understand the shape of the battlefield and the prospects for victory

The American City: What Works, What Doesn't Alexander Garvin, 2013-12-02 The definitive guide to urban planning and design completely updated and now in full color In the Third Edition of The American City What Works What Doesn't award winning city planner and renowned urban scholar Alexander Garvin examines more than 350 programs and projects that have been implemented nationwide in 150 cities and suburbs evaluates their successes and failures and offers relevant lessons learned from them Nearly all of the book's 650 illustrations are now in full color and consist almost entirely of photographs maps and diagrams produced especially for the Third Edition Garvin discusses major urban initiatives that have emerged over the past two decades such as Chicago's Millennium Park, Houston's Uptown Business District and Metropolitan Denver's FasTracks multicounty rapid transit network. He reexamines the wide range of places and strategies covered in the previous edition, offering new analyses and insights. A new chapter on retrofitting the city for a modern commercial economy is included. This practical guide presents six key ingredients of project success: market location, design, financing, time, and entrepreneurship, and explains how to combine these elements in a mutually reinforcing manner. Garvin demonstrates how the synthesis of individual and private sector efforts, community level action, and broad-based government policy can and has achieved urban and suburban regeneration.

Rebuilding Low Income Housing, Rachel Bratt, 1994-07-28. Examining earlier federal housing initiatives, Rachel Bratt argues that public housing has not failed. She proposes a new strategy for producing decent, affordable housing for low-income people through non-profit, community-based organizations. The potential of a new housing policy built on empowering community groups and low-income households is compelling. The production, rehabilitation, management, and/or ownership by community-based organizations with funding and technical assistance provided by a new type of public support system not only would offer participants much-needed shelter but also control over and security in their living environments. These qualities have been lacking in housing sponsored by the private-for-profit sector as well as in previous subsidy programs. The author analyzes the limitations of both profit-oriented developers and public agencies as the primary vehicles for developing low and middle-income housing. Promoting small-scale neighborhood organizations as better suited for delivering such services, she focuses on large multi-family projects and argues that our urban public housing stock represents an irreplaceable resource that is rapidly decaying to a point of no return. Through a number of case studies of housing projects throughout Massachusetts, among them South Holyoke, the Granite Properties Fields Corner in Dorchester, and the Boston Housing Partnership, Bratt examines the dilemmas faced by community development corporations, analyzes the accomplishments of empowered community groups, and recommends ways of rebuilding a Low Income Housing Policy.
