Plan:

- Patterns of production and consumption have changed throughout time
- Particularly with the decentralisation of manufacturing
- Bananas are mainly produced in the global south- with Ecuador being the largest exporter 23% of all exports

P1- can be argued that to a large extent it can exacerbate inequality

- Global market is dominated by TNCs
- 45% - Chiquita, Dole, Del Monte- oligopoly market- where 3 firms own majority of market share
- Leads to repatriation of profits- the countries which these bananas are actually produced in do not get the benefit
- Small scale farmers are often taken advantage of
- However there has recently been a rise in fair trade- mainly UK consumers are becoming eco-friendly - particularly the green middle class
- Seen through rise of veganism- and nutritional yeast being stocked in Tesco
- Possibly in the long term- consumers may only opt for fair trade reducing inequalities
- However due to cost of living crisis hitting Britain- inflation at 8.7% as of 2023 May- seems unlikely consumer choice will sway for more expensive fair trade

P2- can be argued that bananas increase an LIC's market access

- EU largest consumers- 50% of all imports
- Due to past colonial ties in 1999 were prepared to give SDTs- lower tariffs to past colonies and make LIC bananas more competitive
- This theoretically would have been able to increase an LICs market access and made them more competitive than American TNCs
- WTO got involved in this and stopped it from getting through
- Clear that power relations- and the influence of large HIC countries such as the USA largest sole importer (18%) means that unless the most influential stakeholders (in terms of geopolitical power) are happy- it does not matter whether the tariffs are too high or not
- Also this is a disturbing display of colonialism and how it has made the global south reliant

Conclusion

- It can lead to a positive multiplier effect and possibly higher HDI scores in manufacturing nations- in the global south and the rural poor
- Only if the farmers are fairly compensated
- Through fair trade
- However consumer behaviour must change and it is looking unlikely as of current situation
- Geopolitically producing countries are extremely disadvantaged on the global stage- the US through its influence on the WTO easily stopped lower british tariffs on UK's former colonies
- Therefore it seems that HICs view LICs as resources to exploit

Disciplinary Literacy and Explicit Vocabulary Teaching: A whole school approach to closing the attainment gap Kathrine Mortimore, 2020-12-15 Firmly rooted in research evidence of what works within the classroom for our most disadvantaged students Disciplinary Literacy and Explicit Vocabulary Teaching offers teachers and school leaders practical ways in which those students who are behind in their literacy capabilities can make excellent progress Building on the work of Geoff Barton in his influential book Don't Call it Literacy Kathrine Mortimore outlines the unique literacy challenges posed by specific subject areas for those with weaker literacy skills and more importantly how these challenges can be addressed and overcome A student's GCSE results are vital in giving them the choices they deserve in order to go on to the next stage of their academic careers This book draws on the success stories of schools and subjects that have made significant improvements in the outcomes of the children they teach regardless of their starting points From the inevitable success of Michaela Community school to the gains made by the English department at Torquay Academy and the rapid reading improvements at Henley Bank this book draws on both whole school initiatives and subject specific strategies which have had proven success This book places a wide and balanced knowledge rich curriculum at the centre of any school improvement strategy designed to improve literacy and illustrates the role that all subjects must combine to play in building the vital background knowledge and vocabulary that young people need in order to read independently This curriculum must then be delivered using those teaching methods that have had the greatest impact on disadvantaged learners and this book sets out how the methodology of direct and explicit instruction can be adopted within each subject area Alongside this is a useful summary of staff development and inset which offers practical ways in which teachers adoption of these effective strategies can be facilitated There are also useful sections on creating a whole school dictionary of essential vocabulary creating a culture of reading and writing and also those key literacy barriers experienced by those students with some of the most common special educational needs

Stochastic Population Dynamics in Ecology and Conservation Russell Lande, Steinar Engen, Bernt-Erik Sæther, 2003 All populations fluctuate stochastically creating a risk of extinction that does not exist in deterministic models with fundamental consequences for both pure and applied ecology This book provides the most comprehensive introduction to stochastic population dynamics combining classical background material with a variety of modern approaches including new and previously unpublished results by the authors illustrated with examples from bird and mammal populations and insect communities Demographic and environmental stochasticity are introduced with statistical methods for estimating them from field data The long run growth rate of a population is explained and extended to include age structure with both demographic and environmental stochasticity

Diffusion approximations facilitate the analysis of extinction dynamics and the duration of the final decline. Methods are developed for estimating delayed density dependence from population time series using life history data. Metapopulation viability and the spatial scale of population fluctuations and extinction risk are analyzed. Stochastic dynamics and statistical uncertainty in population parameters are incorporated in Population Viability Analysis and strategies for sustainable harvesting. Statistics of species diversity measures and species abundance distributions are described with implications for rapid assessments of biodiversity and methods are developed for partitioning species diversity into additive components. Analysis of the stochastic dynamics of a tropical butterfly community in space and time indicates that most of the variance in the species abundance distribution is due to ecological heterogeneity among species so that real communities are far from neutral.

English Medium Instruction Ernesto Macaro, 2018-02-19 Ernesto Macaro brings together a wealth of research on the rapidly expanding phenomenon of English Medium Instruction. Against a backdrop of theory, policy documents and examples of practice, he weaves together research in both secondary and tertiary education with a particular focus on the key stakeholders involved in EMI: the teachers and the students. Whilst acknowledging that the momentum of EMI is unlikely to be diminished and identifying its potential benefits, the author raises questions about the ways it has been introduced and developed and explores how we can arrive at a true cost-benefit analysis of its future impact. This state-of-the-art monograph presents a wide-ranging, multi-perspectival yet coherent overview of research, policy and practice of English Medium Instruction around the globe. It gives a thorough, in-depth and thought-provoking treatment of an educational phenomenon that is spreading on an unprecedented scale.

Guangwei Hu, National Institute of Education, Singapore. Additional online resources are available at www.oup.com/elt/teacher/emi. Ernesto Macaro is Professor of Applied Linguistics at the University of Oxford and is the founding Director of the Centre for Research and Development on English Medium Instruction at the University of Oxford.
